AVIATION QUESTION OF THE MONTH

Answer to last month's question: Can I log instrument time while flying on an IFR flight plan above a solid layer of clouds without visual reference to the ground?

According to AOPA: Part 61.51(g) of the federal aviation regulations describes logging instrument time. You should only log instrument time when the aircraft is operated solely by reference to instruments under actual or simulated instrument flight conditions. Unless you were flying above the clouds with a view limiting device and an appropriately rated safety pilot, you should not log that time as instrument time.

This Month's Question: Is there a limit to the number of hours a private pilot can fly in one day?

FUND RAISING STATUS

Many are already aware that we have a fund raising effort going on for the Clubhouse roof. We do solicit funds from those who attend the meetings, but most of our members cannot make all the meetings. I appeal to you, also, for support of this fund. Please consider writing a check and send it to Don Bush, (address is on the front page). Remember when writing checks, please make them out to EAA 172 only. Other fancier titles only get us in trouble with the bank. I will be communicating our progress monthly as we move toward our goal. Again, thank you very much for your support! Al
